

The Republican Democracy Party

Charter

We the People of the United States of America, being heirs and successor governors of these lands to the original native peoples and to the Protestant kings and queens of England, are endowed with the inalienable rights of a free and sovereign nation. With the understanding that our national liberties are liberties at law, and that the protection thereof requires vigilance and attention, it is by this charter that we do freely assemble for political purposes according to law and establish this body corporate and politic as the Republican Democracy Party (RDP).

I. COVENANTS

All members swear to:

Hold these covenants as higher law and an inviolable contract, accepting membership according to their terms;

Respect the lawful right of other members to dignity, privacy and to peaceable assembly without spying or alienation, and to quietly surrender membership upon a vote of exclusion for breach thereof as more fully set forth in Section V (below).

Faithfully fulfill all party duties and responsibilities undertaken.

Stand for the rule of law, justice, peace and ecological restoration.

Speak only truth while giving love indifferently and opposing contempt for the rights, liberties and Commonwealth of all people or peoples now or ever cognizable under our system of English law.

Practice and espouse active participation and non-violence.

II. PRINCIPLES

The RDP holds that:

Republican government is by the People according to constitutions and laws, and not by banks, corporations, poseurs or monarchy;

Democratic government is of the People with government closest to the People being best;

Constitutional democracy is a contract with all governmental assets of any type or nature being the Commonwealth of the People;

The RDP shall establish strength in state government to assert state sovereignty as a balance to federal power;

A Constitutional amendment shall establish universal education and health care as a personal right;

The most fundamental liberty to make our own laws shall not be impinged or surrendered;

Social security being established by a Federal Insurance Corporation Act (FICA), all funds are non-discretionary to Congress for other purposes;

The National Guard being the states' militia, must be under the exclusive command of the Governors with foreign adventures only upon their public order.

Standing armies, mercenary forces, military tribunals and unaccountable military industrial and intelligence complexes should be abolished;

All sovereign or prerogative powers not granted to the federal union by thirteen independent and sovereign states are reserved to the states or to the People.

The exploitation of labor, natural resources and technology being necessary for human sustenance, unions and a living wage, environmental restoration and protections of health and safety are essential;

Victimless crimes and pretexts of war for taking greater authority are to be resisted;

Rural and urban communities must be balanced with the countryside protected;

The sanctity of the obligations of contracts, the equal rights and treatment of all persons before the law, and the freedom of conscience in a secular state are essential to our liberty;

All voting in contested partisan elections should be open and published for public inspection with the option provided for privacy;

Acts made or actions taken by governmental bodies without or in excess of their Constitutionally delegated powers to reconstitute government or to extend powers into the states, or over the People, are opposed;

Should the government of the United States continue to operate outside of the powers delegated to it by the federalist Constitution thereof, and the People are strong within their states, a constitutional convention of the states should be convened for the re-constituting of said government, with the Bill of Rights to be considered first and not in any way diminished.
